When John Ek started his business in the early '40s, he was adamant about making his knives available only to active-duty servicemen. He was so convinced his knives gave the user an advantage over any adversary he wanted to be sure they didn't get in the wrong hands.

It's not so difficult to obtain an Ek Commando knife anymore, but they are no less effective. Made from the finest materials, Ek has lived up to the motto John Ek laid down for his company more than 50 years ago: "Made in America, by Americans, for Americans."

- Contoured black micarta grips
- Black web sheath
- High carbon stainless steel
- Brass X-head fasteners
- Made in U.S.A.

Exclusive Offer, Traditional Quality

We're proud to offer Ek's P-3 and I-5 models exclusively to Cutlery Shoppe customers. The P-3 offers the long-awaited return of Pakkawood grips, while the I-5 sports an ivory micarta handle. The brass guards and X-head fasteners give these knives a look that proves function doesn't have to be anything less than handsome.

Walnut Display Case

This traditional display will look great in your home or office. It's designed to hold any Ek Commando knife, as well as any military-style knife (V-42, Fairbairn-Sykes, etc.). It can be displayed flat or wall mounted (hardware included).

The case is crafted of American walnut, hand finished, and lined in classic black velvet. The shatter-resistant glass lid protects your knife from dust, and makes removal easy. Displays of this quality usually sell for considerably more.

50 YEARS--AN AMERICAN MILITARY TRADITION WORLD WAR II • KOREA • VIETNAM

By Vincent M. Signorelli
General Manager
Ek Commando Knife Company

Many an American life was saved in three wars by John Ek's Commando Knives. The thousands of letters he received from satisfied GIs were the ultimate satisfaction for this patriotic American.

In a sense, he was the Jim Bowie of our century. During World War II, one newspaper article reported that Ek Knives "became surrounded almost immediately by an aura of fame and invincibility." Like Bowie, John Ek pioneered a classic knife design. And his knives were made for fighting men—American fighting men.

John Ek died on 21 October 1976. But, his name, his knives, and the Ek Commando Knife Company live on as a legacy of his ideas, skills, and his patriotism.

Today, state-of-the-art materials such as the specially-developed HCS1718 high-carbon stainless steel and the finest hilt components complement John Ek's basic, time-tested designs. And, except for a few technological advances in machinery and equipment, little has changed in the Ek workrooms. Each knife is still individually benchmade by skilled craftsmen, almost exactly how they were made when production first began, in 1941.

To knife enthusiasts and makers, Ek Commando Knives represent a 50-year American tradition, steeped in military history, and inextricably bound.

As John Ek said in the mid 1970's, and as the Ek Commando Knife Company reiterates in the 1990's, "There's been hardly a break without some kind of military involvement since 1941, so we've been busy ever since."

S/F Series

A best-seller for Ek Knives, the Survival-Fighter series has forged its way as a modern classic among military fighting knives. In 1941 John Ek commented, "A good knife can save a life." The Survival-Fighter was designed with just that theory in mind.

The S/F-3 has a fully sharpened edge as well as a sharpened false edge, while the S/F-4 sports a full double-edged blade. The S/F-5 single edge and S/F-6 double edge models offer extra strong, extra thick Bosch blades (a full 50% thicker than other Ek blades!). There's no substitute for these workhorse Commandos.

The extended "skullcrusher" pommel is handy for prying or pounding. The Olive drab Paragrip handle is functional and comfortable. Lanyard and a tough nylon web sheath is included.

SWAT Series

The Ek SWAT line was originally designed by and for law enforcement professionals, but has become popular among military personnel and civilians, as well.

The SWAT knife has the same powerful features as the Survival-Fighter above, but the Paragrip handle utilizes black cord and matching lanyard. From end to end, the high carbon stainless steel Ek SWAT is a solid enduring knife.

Tested by professionals, an Ek SWAT will withstand years of rugged use. Order yours today!

Ek MACV-SOG

LIMITED EDITION COMMEMORATIVE

Now, to honor the brave American Soldiers, Marines, Airmen and Sailors that were hand selected to form the ultra-elite MACV-SOG, Ek proudly presents the Ek MACV-SOG Commemorative Knife.

The Ek MACV-SOG is one of the most exotic-looking commemoratives ever created. With features like a unique, "grooved" crossguard, and etched inscriptions, it is a tribute to a special unit whose missions still remain veiled in secrecy. To make this knife even more valuable among collectors, only 500 are available, worldwide, each individually serial numbered on the blade, and accompanied by a Letter of Authenticity.

Included with your knife is a MACV-SOG patch, and a walnut display case lined with Vietnam-era "Tiger Stripe" camo. Supply is extremely limited, so order now to avoid missing out.

Ek Jungle Patrol

Mission-Tailored for Jungle Warfare

In a combat situation, when the chips are down, no amount of determination and courage can overcome the limits of your equipment. That's why professional military men know the importance of choosing a fighting knife that's mission-tailored to your needs.

The Ek Jungle Patrol model was created with design assistance from American military men experienced in jungle warfare. It features a new Ek Paragrip handle: 18 feet of wrapped canvas/leopar parachute cord, specially made for this knife to 550-lb. tensile strength military specification.

The stainless steel "commando-style" blade resists rust, and is bead blasted and specially coated to a non-reflective finish which is preferred by many special forces troops. The solid brass down-swept cross-guard is Teflon-coated black to eliminate glare.

Included with your Jungle Patrol knife is an olive drab military web sheath with Velcro retaining strap. The sheath is considered to be the most versatile of its kind, and is plenty wide for any military-style belt. If you'll be needing a knife that's jungle tough, consider the Ek Jungle Patrol.

Ek Desert Recon

Own the Knife Designed for Desert Warfare

Our U.S. troops in the Middle East found a need for knives suited especially for desert warfare. And who better than Ek—with knives battle-tested in these wars—to create a knife suited for desert use?

Cutlery Shoppe is proud to offer our latest Ek exclusive, the "Desert Recon." Its blade is etched with the official operation logo to pay tribute to our men and women who served and are serving overseas.

The fully-sharpened, double-edged blade is bead-blasted to a non-glare finish. The solid brass guard is down-swept for comfort and coated in sand-colored, non-reflective Teflon.

The handle of the Desert Recon is wrapped with 18 feet of custom-made, 550-lb. tensile strength desert tan canvas/leopar parachute cord. Each knife includes an American-made desert tan web belt sheath with Velcro closure, reinforced for the rigors of military use.

Buy the Ek Desert Recon today and you'll receive something special: your choice of either an Operation Desert Shield or Desert Storm patch (a $5 value) absolutely free!

Ek Throwing Knife

Cutlery Shoppe brings you another exclusive product! The new Ek "Professional" Throwing Knife features two sets of classic Ek "scallops" along the blade length, and a point which is, in John Ek's words, borrowed from the "arrowhead design proven by the American Indians." You'll find that this asymmetrical design provides an exceptional amount of balance. Fine tune your accuracy with Ek's Throwing Knife. Black leather sheath included.

Ek Desert Warrior

The Warrior Adapts
to Desert Combat

Born here from Ek, the Desert Warrior was created at the request of our troops engaged in the Middle East during the heat of battle. Very popular with the troops, we think you'll love this affordable Ek knife, too.

Crafted primarily as a combat knife, the Desert Warrior has a hair shaving-sharp edge as well as a sharpened false edge to enhance its role as an indispensable field use knife, as well. The full tang blade and extended "skullcrusher" pommel makes this a strong tool for pounding or prying as well as cutting.

The Desert Warrior sports a triple riveted American hardwood handle and includes a desert tan web belt sheath, heavily reinforced for action-packed military use.

"Secret Agent" Boot Knife

At the request of professional military men and law enforcement officers, Ek Commando Knives brings you the ultimate "Silent Partner", the Ek Secret Agent Boot knife. This new boot knife features Ek's battle-proven full-width, full tang blade design—a solid piece of steel from the reinforced point to the extended butt.

Six feet of black military-spec. parachute cord is specially wrapped around the tang to form the distinctive Ek Paragrip®. At just 7 1/2" overall length, the Secret Agent boot knife is compact, yet fits perfectly in your hand. The 3 1/2" blade is honed shaving sharp, and is much thicker and stronger than other knives in this category. A great companion, the Ek Secret Agent boot knife is a convenient, useful "Silent Partner".
